

Valparaiso University School of Law Study Abroad Program Agreement

I, _____, as a participant on a Valparaiso University or University-approved study abroad program, do voluntarily and without reservation and on behalf of myself, my heirs, and my estate, waive all claims that might arise of whatever nature for death or any injury, loss, damage, accident, delay, irregularity or expense arising from strikes, war, weather, sickness, quarantine, hostilities, natural disasters, political or civil violence including terrorism, transportation, sightseeing, hotel, host family housing, or the use of any vehicle or services of a transporting company, firm, individual, or agency, for any cause whatsoever in connection therewith against Valparaiso University and its agents, the Host Institution, and all Valparaiso University faculty, staff members or employees, directors, trustees, and agents, their heirs and their estates.

In addition, should I be unable to decide for myself, I grant Valparaiso University and its agent's full authority to take whatever action they feel is warranted regarding my care. In such circumstances (e.g. physical and/or mental illness or injury), I authorize a faculty representative of Valparaiso University to secure necessary medical treatment, including the administration of anesthetic and surgery, at my own expense. If it is further deemed necessary by Valparaiso University and/or local medical authorities, I will be flown back to the United States for further medical treatment at my own expense.

I have determined (with or without medical assistance) that I am physically and mentally able to participate in this program. I realize that there are certain risks inherent to international travel and/or participation in the study abroad program, including mental or physical sickness and injury (including mortal injury), and I realize that Valparaiso University does not employ medical or mental health professionals abroad. I acknowledge that any and all health or accident insurance that I consider necessary is my responsibility to locate and purchase, and that such insurance is required for all study abroad participants. I realize that the International Student Identity Card (ISIC) provides modest accident and sickness insurance and emergency evacuation anywhere I travel outside the United States for as long as the card is valid, but that this insurance is considered supplemental and should not take the place of family insurance or other primary insurance coverage.

I realize that there are certain risks inherent to international travel and/or participation in the study abroad program including loss, damage, destruction, or theft of luggage or personal belongings. I acknowledge that any and all personal property insurance that I consider necessary is my responsibility to locate and purchase.

I understand that Valparaiso University reserves the right to make cancellations for insufficient participation in the program, or in the event of a U.S. State Department Travel Warning or other reasons. Valparaiso University also reserves the right to make changes (including equipment substitution) or other alterations in the program's proposed schedule and I agree in advance to accept such changes or cancellations. I understand further that in the event that the program is cancelled, Valparaiso University shall have no responsibility beyond the refund of all deposits made and monies paid to Valparaiso University by participants. Minor alterations in the program will not result in refunds.

I am aware of the risks of travel and living in different cultures. I will give close attention to safety information provided as part of the program orientation. I acknowledge that I will need to adjust my behavior, dress, and activities to maximize my own and the group's safety while we are abroad.

I recognize that during my participation in a Valparaiso University or University-approved study abroad program, I am a guest in another country, and I agree to uphold individual and group standards appropriate to the cultural setting of the program. If my actions are judged to be injurious to the program and/or seriously offensive to the host culture(s), I acknowledge that the Program Director has the right to terminate my enrollment in the program without refund of fees and to return me to the United States at my own expense. Furthermore, in the case of an emergency, I grant Valparaiso University permission to contact person(s) listed below:

Concerning Mental Health

In addition to our study abroad agreement, we wish to inform students that mental health treatment may not be as widely accessible abroad as it is in the United States. In our admissions process, we do not discriminate against individuals who have any type of emotional or other personal problems, but we urge all students to think carefully about submitting themselves to additional pressure, fatigue, and anxiety of life in a foreign environment. For your own welfare, we ask that if you have had any emotional or psychological problem, you consult with a mental health professional in this country to discuss the potential stress of study abroad.

Concerning Harassment

Valparaiso University's study abroad programs adhere to the University's policies regarding all forms of harassment. Within the study abroad context, Valparaiso University realizes that cultural, social, familial, and educational relationships differ from those in the United States and occasionally are misunderstood and misinterpreted by US students studying abroad. However, we believe that no student participating in a Valparaiso University program should have to experience unwelcome sexual or other types of harassment pressures. Should you at any time during your overseas program feel unwanted pressures, you should contact immediately the Valparaiso University School of Law Program Director or Associate Dean for Academics.

Concerning Transportation

We recognize that during their time abroad, many students wish to travel within the host country or in neighboring countries. However, as the traffic rules and rhythms of the road are quite different in other countries, the International Studies Office advises students against operating a motor vehicle while studying abroad. In addition, as inexpensive and convenient public transportation is readily available in most places, the International Studies Office advises students against hitchhiking during their study abroad programs.

Concerning Student Safety

Students should inform themselves completely about the risks of any study abroad experience. We are confident that our knowledgeable overseas consultants and staff have selected locations and activities that minimize the risk of encountering threatening situations, AND, as far as possible, we monitor events through US and host government sources as well as news media and colleagues on site, AND we have on-site contacts to deal with emergencies and crisis situations, but we still cannot absolutely guarantee the safety of program participants. Students are asked to recognize and acknowledge the risks of any experience outside their own culture and to take reasonable steps to adjust their behavior, dress, and activities to maximize their own and the group's safety. I have carefully read and understand the statements above.
