Law 250B – Constitutional Law II

Lind

For our first class on Monday, January 11, read and be prepared to discuss pages 3 through 26 up to sec. D in the casebook, The First Amendment: Cases, Problems, and Materials (2d ed. LexisNexis) by Russell Weaver, Catherine Hancock, Donald E. Lively, and John C. Knechtle. This material introduces you to theories about the First Amendment and then the groundbreaking early cases involving national security decided in connection with antiwar activity from the First World War (1917 on). If you want to read farther ahead, simply continue, as we are going straight through the book for awhile.

Law 272A – Law & Society

Dooley

Required Text: Bonsignore, Katsh, d'Errico, Pipkin, Arons & Rifkin, Before the Law: An Introduction to the Legal Process (Houghton Mifflin, 8th ed. 2006).

Assignment for first class (Tuesday, January 12): Read the Foreword, pp. xiii-xxi.

These are excerpts from Kafka—we'll discuss them in conjunction with a pleading case you might remember from first-year civil procedure called Dioguardi v. Durning (it's a short case that I'll hand out in class). But don't worry: the whole semester will not be Kafka-esque (I hope).

Law 300-A2 – Seminar: Globalization

No Assignment

Law 301-C – Seminar: Securities Law

Morrisson

For 1/14, read pp. 1-51 in the text.

Law 301-E – Seminar: International Sports Law

Straubel

Please read pages 1-13, 17-34, and 213-241 of Nafziger's International Sports Law, which is on reserve in the library. Naomi Berman and Matthew Boyer will be particularly responsible for the material.

Law 301-G – Seminar: Higher Education

deJorna

Read Pages 1-41, 134-41 Higher Education and the Law, Judith Aren. Come prepared to discuss the governance structure of your undergraduate institution.

Law 400 – Law Practice Management

Phillips

Read the first chapter of the textbook, "Munneke, Cases and Materials", and be prepared to discuss the material in class.
