276-A Latin America: Human Rights (Prof. Adams) - 2 cr.

495-A1 Religious Freedom: Comparative & International Perspectives (Prof. Calo) - 2 cr.

This course considers the relationship between law and religion from a comparative and international perspective, with particular attention given to issue of religious freedom. The course begins by examining the intellectual history of religious freedom. We will study seminal primary source documents, particularly from the Anglo-American tradition. We will then consider the contemporary treatment of religion in various national legal systems, focusing on the United States and selected countries in South America and Europe. The course next addresses the status of religious freedom within international law. In addition to looking at relevant international declarations and covenants, we will study issues from regional regimes such as the European Court of Human Rights and the Inter-American Court of Human Rights, as well as the United States Commission on International Freedom. The course concludes by considering a number of case studies implicating religion and religious freedom such as proselytism, headscarves, education, family law, and gender and sexuality.
